() ("F the begiming of the (iibil war, the rammer of rich discoseries of gold ial Montana suread rapidly. and as a result large bands of prospectors canc from California. ()regom, and other western states. The lard working. industrious class set about carming their living honestly in the mining-camps, but there was als , a class of adventurers who sought some means of getting a living in al shiftless. dishomest way. I band of these men organized wnder the manne of "Road Agents".

In those dity the peopale were obliged to encommter manỵ perils, one of the greatest of which lay in these loands of lawless men. Who organized themselies intu companies. With captains, lientenants, and road awents, soon became the terror of the country:

Such was the state of affairs, when Jim Norton was made eastain of the most daring and treacherous band of them all. Before Norton came to this wild country, he had been respected by all his friends ats a grood, honest fellow. Then two great sorrows came intu his life-the death of his wife ancl, six months later, that of his only danghter, leaving lim alone in the world with a small grandson.

He soon grew dull and morose, and most of his friends quickly deserted him. He stayed in the city as long as he could enclure $i t$, but finally set out for the gold regions to seek adventure, taking the baby with him. Once in Montana with the rough, muncouth men, he forgot his former life.

In a short time, he had joined the road agents' band and displayed such daring and fearlessness in his exploits that his rough eompanions somon hailed him as their captain.

One night, about a year after Norton had been made captain. "old ['ete," the most blood-thirsty member of the band. hurried into the captain's cabin. seating himself comfortably, he rubbed his hands together delightedly. "Cap"n, old bos," he said. "we ain't had a chance like this one for months. 'lomorrow afternoon the stage coach comes through here from liannock, on its way to the States. Wike was sneakin' round down there this evenin and he pieked up irom the talk that was groin' 'round, that them rich Van liburens womld be on it. F"hat means several thousand dollars for us, if we go keerful."
"Well, if we ever had ant" luck, we ought to have it now: " Norton replied enthusiastically. "Ule ain't made a slip for nigh onto two years and I reckon we won't start in now: But I tell you it's a mighty risky business holdin' up at stage at three o'clock in the afternoon. 1 wouldn't risk it for ordinary passengers. But the I ${ }^{\top}$ an Burens!".

The nest afternoon, about two n'clock, Norton armed himself for the attack. He took especial pains this time, for the robbers were rumning great risks and if they were caught the result would be fatal. Only a month before, the excitable town mobs had lynched six of their number.

Norton mounted his horse, but he did not start immediately. He had his two revolvers and his dagger tucked carefully away. What was it that he had forgotten? Iust then his little grandsom toddled into view. Oh, yes, he remembered now! It was the groo(-h) ye kiss.
lhe dismounted, caught the baby and tossed him high into the air. "Honey." he said. "grandad's goin' away for a little while, but when he comes back, he'll bring candly, if youre been a good boy and stayed round home all afternoon. Sonny, do you love gour old grandad as much as he loves you?"

Somy smiled. "Me lowes gam'pa. lle bring baby candr." he lisped.

That was all: but, as the stalwart captain rode rapidly allay, his eyes had a tender expression. Ifowever, when he reached his band, the look of the father had changed to that of the rowing adrenturer.
"Lo, Cap"n," called l'ete. "W"c were skeered a tritle. We've been waitin' nigh onto half-an-hour. But no matter. Youre here now: What do you think"s the best plan?"
"iVell," said Jim, musing, " 1 reckon that long stretch of willows bout a quarter mite from whe cabin woukd be as gond a place as any: Nothin' much comes long that road except the stage-coaches, and 1 reckon we're not objectin' to them."

The men agreed and soon the horses were galloping down the road to the stretch of willows.

Sonny tried to be very good that afternoon. He sat on the cabin step and thonght about the candy his grandad would bring. But he soon grew tired and looked around for a better form of amusement. A brightly colored butterfly flew from the bushes around the door. "l'itty bird," he called sweetly, and was soon in full chase.

Having gone some distance, Somy sank down by the road, tired and disappointed. The butterfly had disappeared and everything looked very strange. Then he heard the somnd of approaching horses far down the road. He grot up and torklled in their direction.

As the stage-coach drew nearer, the driver saw the child. He stopped the horses and lifted the ting figure to the seat beside him. ". Ire gon lost. baby ?" he asked kindly:

The chitd brushed away a tear from his grimy little cheek. "Me wants gampa," he sobbed.

The driver decided to take the child to the near-by town, as there would surely be someme there who woukd know to whom it belonged.
"lt's all right, som. I'll soon find your dadkly," he said.

Sombe was comforted and the stage continned its journey. As they Went along, the stage-driver meditated: "T'm glad it's day time. l'd be mighty scared if I hat to drive through those willows at might. with those roarl agents prowling about. But I guess it's pretty safe at this time of day." he thought.
lhe was whistling cheerfully as the stage approached the stretch of woods. Suddenly, there was a rustling in the bushes and six armed men sprang from ambush, foremost of whom was Jim Norton.
"Hands up, or [11-! "
The sentence was never finished. From the driwer's seat a clear, childish voice rang out:
"Oh! it's gam'pa. come to take baby home!"

Norton's hand dropped as if paralyzed.
"My (rod. boys. I can't do it !" he saic. "I can"t let Somuy know."

His men were dumfounded at the words and actions of their captain, but after many waths they respected his wishes and reluctantly left the scene.

ANGUS

 first sall the light of day on far off L.achgill. He was of Crofter parents. who rented their almost harren acres from the great liarl Morry. 1lis boyhood days were filled with harsh comomy, harsh correction, and ceen harsher religion.

On the hills wer-fooking beautiful lonehgill, the tended the sparse flocks of his parents. Ile wonkl lie among the heather and watch the flight of sea-bieds. that occasionally fonnd their way inland from the dantic. He often heard its deep surge in the clear air of the IVestern contland llighlands. Dreams came to young Angus on the hillside among the sheep and in the little sechool homse down in the Glen. School was taught by an ancient dominie, who instilled his rather scant kmowledge into the minds of the kilted lads and lassies. They tramped over the moor or came over the 1 .och in sturdy fishing boats. "to learn their lessms", as they put it. Ilis dreams usually left him with a strange desire to go somewhere, to see the land that lay toward the West where the sun sank.

Ingus grew to be a fine foung fellow liked by every Crofter in the hills. He had more than his sliare of the meager education of his prsition. The dominie had rather an extensive library, and \ngus was the only one whom the old gentleman would permit to use it. Athough of $n o$ great value to himself, he guarded it jealously: In this way Angus developed a lowe of literature which to be truthful favered travel and adwenture, but at least gave him a command of language.
()n Ingust, the year before this. the old learl Mome had died, and he had been buried with his fathers. (omsiderable sjeculation had arisen amones the villagers as to what kind of a man the roung liarl would be. They had omly seen him once as a boy and so, little was known of him. The gonng liarl lowed th travel and was a big game hunter. Now it was numored that Robert, the pomige learl , Morry, was about to mowe to his ancestral hone at Lochgill for the deer shonting that fall.
()ne day white stalking deer with thon friends. he came upon Ingus. The y ming land was pleased with the young man and surprised at his command of language. Ile engaged . Tngus in a longe onversation and was so plea-ed that he hired him as his gillic for the hunting season. When the hunting season was over, the Earl did mot have much difficulty in persuading lagus to accompany him to Lomedon.
During the stay in Londom be met a remote relation of the Earl's and became very fond oi her. Catherine Elfot was a relation of young Robert:s in another branch of the family. She was very well educated and had intended becoming a governess until found by the liarl and kindly forced to accept his hospitality: i prette romance grew out of this meeting and determined $\backslash n g u s$ mon the most homorable conurse to pursue. Ile ielt that considering his station in life that the time had not yet come when he could ask (atherine to be his wife. The restless Earl about this time, decided upom a trip to America to the Canadian Rocky Mountains on a big game hunt. So in the course of a fell weeks, they were established in a camp in the Canadian Northwest. They found plenty of game and enjoyed themselves fully.

One day Angus in pursuing a deer came to the edge of a steep hill. In his attempt to stop, he tripped and fell headlong downward. It the foot. rather dazed, he picked himself up, and gazed ruefully at his brnised hands. In one, he held a small shrub, which he had grasped in his fall. llappening to look at the spot where he had uprooted the shrub, his eve caught the glitter of something. Making an attempt to regain the point from whence he had fallen, he stopped to inspect the shining object. He was amazed to find that he had uncovered a veill of quart\% which was shot with gold. From his belt he unslung a hunter: axe and in feverish haste knocked off a piece of the rock. After some difficulty in regaining the trail, he returned to camp. The Earl immediately saw the wonderful possibilities of the property and ordered their camp to be struck.

Days of haste followed in their race to the land office, where they finally arrived and filed their claim to the discovers: The first intimation that the Earl had of Angus regard for his grung relation, was when . Ingus stammered that he would like to name the property the Catherine Cold Mine. Explanations followed, and the Earl told the young man that there was no man he wouk rather have (atherine marry. The liarl's great wealth, which he insisted in placing at Angus' disposal, soon set the Catherine mine among the great gold producers of the conntry: So it was decided that Angus should stay in Canada to look aiter his property.

One sunny afternoon three years later, a tall, broad-shouldered, bronzed voung man presented his card at the Warwick Square honse of the Earl of lorry: In a few moments, the Earl appeared and joyfully welomed his former companion. From the look in the eves of Catherine, who had likewise hurried into the room, there was little doubt but that our young friend woukd before long be able to claim distant relationship with the Earl of Morry.

THE WOMAN HATER

Iosephine Jincent. "/ oner"

L.L.Y was a confirmed bachelor. There seemed to be absorlately no hope, and Billy limself thus aptly voiced his sentiments:
'. $\ \mathrm{IW}$, girls ain't 10 good. All they know's playin' 'th dolls, 'n they cant do nothin' like ins fellers. 1)ont see what girls is for, nohow." The most particular object of his contempt was a fluffy, pink-and-white creature called Maryrose llampton.

But one day Cupid pierced even billy:s heart of stome. liilly fell in love.
She was a tomboy. She despised dolls, could throw a rock as far as any boy in her grade and could often beat the boys in races. She wasn't a bit pretty: 1 ler hair was skimed back tight and tied with a ting bow into, a little pig-tail. Ifer pug nose was generonsly besprinkled with freckles, and when she smiled, she grinned froll car to ear, disclosing a set of missing teeth. Her black eyes would smap furiously, and her vocalulary was a fitting cap to the climax. In her extensive vocabulary could be fround swear-words-swear-words to fit anl and every occasion, swearworde strong and swear-words mild, long and short, original and coppied.
For these and varions other reasons. Bibly. iell in love with Angelica Emucline s.mitl.

She did not take part in silly "girlfights". in which tongues, fists, fingermails, and hair played important parts. but bravely (and victoriously) came forth to meet her masculine o?ponellts.
Now there came a day when Billy's love was put to a test. Everything is put to a test somper or later, and whether it comes out victurions or not remains to be seen.
Billy had a fight with Angelica E:mmeline Smitll. The canse was unknown, but all of a sudden during recess such a howl went up as sent everyone scrambling to the scene of (ombat. Rolling over and over on the grass was a bundle of arms, legs, and pig-tails, while discarded sweaters and a cap lay near-l)y on the gromucl.
The spectators strod by in breathless silence, and not until . Ingelica Emmeline was sitting astride b;illy:stomach and pommeling his chest with her fists did anl amazed gasp fill the air.
Billy had had enough, but he wouldn't admit it-not to a girl. Not much! So Pilly stuck it out.
When Ingelica Emmeline finished with him, Bifly, his head in a whirl, and feeling rather shaky alout the knees, got up and went into schoo!. where he sank dejectedly into his seat.
Gone was his love for Angelica Emmeline. Grone were his two fromt teeth, and gone was his self-respect. Ife was positive that he was disgraced for life. for he liad been beaten by a girl. It would leave a blot which he could not wipe out as hong as he lived.

To the school pienic a few week: later Billy proudly esconted Miss Maryrose \|lampton, a fairy in pink riblons and snew-white irills. Is they passed the Smith domicile, the freckled, pug-nosed. countenance of Ingelica Emmeline. who had been suspended for breaking a window with a rock, contemptunosly regarded the pair. Biill- vacantly returned ler stare.
Billy had become a "lady-killer."

Books for Wide-Awake Girls

There should be no "terra incousnita" in our library, but there undoubtedly is. Many girls do not know that games for social use, books on etifuette, articles on the cultivation of the wice and entertaining biographies of celebrated women are on the shelves and in pigeon-holes.

Mary Antin's "The I'romised Land' and "The Story of My Life", by Helen Keller, are among the most interesting, and since Spokane has had the pleasure of hearing both athors, they should be particularly appreciated.

Who Wants to Be Wise?

Why is Venus in the Library? She sits on the card catalogue. cold and still, exerting her influence as of old when she was worshipped by all the gods on ()lympus.

As you all kmow. lemus was the special protectress of all romer people in lose Not. of course, that any girl in this high school is uncondi tionally and irrerocably in that state, but merely that Venus throws the gossamer threads of frivolity around all susceptible girls-and incidentall. boy:s.

After reflecting upon the fickle character of lemus power, it need not be said that she ought to be remowed from the place where gray matter is supposedly developed. Consider how different would be the influence of the staid Minerva! With the greatness of lincoln and the wisdom of Minerva pervading the room. we would have a model institution. There wotuld be no need for monitors and students would always shelve their reference books. Indeed, there Would at last be an L'topia, somewhere!

Girls Win School Championship

li the mumber of girls that have particioated in the inter-class delates and the suceess that has attended them can be taken as a criterion, indications ate that North Central will be remesented by one or more girls in her big debates next seasm.

Thisteen girls demomstrated their ability and prowess as convincing argners, and practically every one stowed promise of ateveloping further intu effective debaters.
lint the climax was canperl when three girls, Kate larkhart. Kate Lapinsky, and Lois Irmstrong, representing the Senior 1) Class, carrieal off the inter-class championshio, of the - chool.

The losers were three boys l'aul Fraser, Del Cary Smith, Ir.. and I.anrence Seltzer, who, althongh mily Freshmen 13's. certainly showed themselves to be real debaters, and gave the girls a goocl hard fight for the championship.

The Seniors urbeld the negative of the ghestion. "Resolved. That complete independence should be granted the l'hilippine lslands within a periond of the ensung five years."

On Mareh 30, the triangular debates on the compulsory arbitration question with Walla Walla and Portland occurred. North Central made an even break. while Portland won two and IValla IValla lost two.

It Walla Walla, our boes, Philip Lysette, William Drisone, and Donglas Scates, upholding the negative of the question, won a two to one decision. They were treated with every courtesy and reported having enjored the trip.

It home a team composed of 1 larold Melaren, Harold Elos, and Robin Cartwright, debated Lincoln High school. P'ortland. TVe endeavored to uphold the affirmative, but lost the the stronger Portland team, the coast champions.

In interesting feature was the use of large charts be the I'ortland team. On these, statistics were plainly viewed by the audience, showing that where compulsory arbitration had been in force, the number of strikes had actually increased. while where compulsony investigation was in use. the strikes were dimmishing in number and violence.

"Grub Street" Spice

Wthough they saly that "girls are the spice of life", the Grub Street (luy) has both the "life" and the "spice" without the girls. -11. Jackson.

Girls Who Got There

()f the many girls in North Central who have achieved recognition, several, perhaps, are especially noteworthy.

Irene Oliver has taken a prominent place in dramatics. Last year she won the Walla Watla dramatic contest, and repeated her achievement this year. She is the leading lady in the class play and has been cast in numerous other productions, both musical and dramatic. She is President of the Masque and Glee Clubs and a member of the Vox Puellarum.

Grace Scroggin, among other thing:is president of the lox I'uellarmo. Not mly that, but this is her second consecutive term in that capacity. She is also serving her second term on the staff of "The Tamarack".
llelen Kaye has attained a higher position on the school paper than any other girl has ever done. Last semester she was literary editor and this term she is associate editor. She is at member of the Tox Puellarum, German. and Science Clubs, and is on the Honor Roll.

Srlyce (ummings has made a scholastic record which pretty nearly beats any ever made in . . $o r t h$ Central. She is first on the flonor Roll with an arerage of well over 9t per cent. She is interested in oratory, and tied ior second place in the recent S. A. R. contest.

Marda Markham, who is a member of the Vox Puellarum and Mathematics Club, is especially interested in gymmasimm work. She has been in all the Spring festivals, and proves an able helper to Miss Deckham. She is also a splendid student. standing fourth on the flomor Roll.
Esmer Caranaugh holds the second place on the llonor Roll. She is presiflent of the Nathematics (lul) and secretary of the Vo. l'uellarum.

Irene lindgren is another musical and dramatic star. She has played important roles in several of the operettas and made a hit as ${ }^{\circ}$. A unt Mary" in the Maspue Play. She is an active member of the Vox Puellarum, Masque, and Glee (lu)s.

Jean McMenran, another homor student. seems to have a fondness for capturing prizes. She has wom in sereral essay and oratorical contests. last year taking first place in the S. A. R. contest. She belongs to sis clubsVox I'nellarmm, Maspue, Blee, Latin, lirench, and Chemistry. She was in the Nasque l'lay and has an important pare in the Senior Ilay, can sing as well as talk, has heen on the staff of "The Tamarack" twice, and is finishing school in three and a hali years.

Like a Spring Tonic

Girls: Plysical Training instructors -in other words "gym" teachersare nearly always good friends of the girls, and 1 liss . Irdelia l'eckham is no exception to the rulc. When a girl has the "blues". she groes down to Miss I'eckham's office to get cheered up, and comes out feeling like your Spring suit after it has come back from the cleaner's. Miss Peckham certainly knows how to put starch into a person. She is so full of "pep", herself that she just can't help making other people feel that way, too. IVe shouldn't know how to get along without her.

Why "Shorty" Is Happy

What's in a name, anylhow? They call him "Tel", "Shorty", "1)oc", "hately", "slim", "1 imn", or anything else that's handy at the time, hut his real honest-to-gnodness name is Lindley Dean Tedrowe. And isn't he too cute for anything, girls?
"Shorty". we'll call him that for conventience's sake, is one of the guardians: of the halls and a more jolly, aceommodating guardian one could not wish to have, for he is always on the job when a locker won't work and takes all jokes that come his way in a manner which woukl be a credit to the most enthusiastic peace lover.
"Shorty" believes in staying close to) mother mature so that he can deteet the old hunch papers that you have thown under gour locker, when it was tove much trouble to hunt for a waste paper bos.
"Short!" told me the sad story of his life last week. 1lere it is. Mbout fifteen years ago when he was 25 years ofld he fell in love with a nice young lady; but she said, "The man 1 will marry must be five feet, four inches tall." Niw there was poor "Shorty" within three and a half inches of supreme happiness and unable to attain it. "Such is liic," said "Short!", as he walked down the hall (1) help poor little Joseph Tewinkel reach the upper shelf of his locker.

Real Stenographers School Product

Stenographers from the high schent! This seemed an impossilibity in the recent past, but at present real. live. wile-awake stenographers are being produced at 入orth Central.

The Commercial department will send out twenty-three capable, well trained stenographers in June, such as are in demand by the leading business men of Spokane. This is the targest commercial class ever graduating from North Central.
Each month speed tests are given in typewriting. and certificates are given the thense who average forty words a minute or more. liesides the requirements in speed and accuracy in shorthand and typewriting, the students of the adranced classes are given a chance to work in school offices and business houses in order to becume acquainted with actual business work and get over the "stage fright" of the young stenugrapher.

Two Young Hopefuls

Shades of l'arlowa and l'aderewski! Genins burns in several directions here at Vorth Central, but two of our most accomplished and ambitious young ladies are laarbara Meikle and Pauline Kimmel. Each in her line may be described in superlative ad-jectiven. Miss Meikle is the best dancer in North Central, and Miss Kimmel is the best pianist. When they finish sehool both girls expect to go East, where Miss lleikle will enter the Actropolitan School of liallet and Miss Kimmel will study under I'aderewski. or Hofmann. or whoever happens to be the greatest master at the time.

Misis Aleikle is a very busy young lady, having classes in Eiler's Hall after school and on Saturdays. She is a member of the Vox Puellarmon and the (ierman (lut) Niss Kimmel, who is also a "lover", is the pianist for the first orchestra.

- Joscpline I incent.

Miss Jessie Gibson

It has been said of high school clubs that their success depends largeyy upon their faculty director. Miss Jessic Cibson has just the kind of personality to make anything she undertakes a success, and much of the success of the lox P'uellarum and Senior 1 girls is due to her wise supervision.

Miss Gibson came to North Central four and a half years ago from the Dberdeen High schonl. She is a gradnate of the Eniversity of Idaho.

A Mere Man

At last, girls, an oasis in a desert! A man in the girls' "'ramarack"! Have you noticed the almost total absence of men in this magazine? But in our opinion J. Lehn Kreiter has a right to be here. for he has entire charge of the girls classes in Chemistry in the llouschold Arts course. Many of us remember him as the man "behind the gun". for although he is not really on the firing line, he has "shot" most of the clubs and people around school, for the is the staff photugrapher for "The Tamarack".

l'erhaps another reasom for his recent interest in the fairer sex ishush! that last summer he journeyed East and brought back with himMrs I. Leeh:n Kreider.

"On Guard In Seven Counts"

"On gruard in seven counts!"
Such a command as this may be heard any Tuesday afternoon during the seventh periorl, if one steps into the gymnasium to watch the girls" advanced class at work. During the last year. Miss L'eckham has been empha wizhg fencing in all of her classes, but especially in this seventh period class. It first. unaccustomed museles protested, and it is to be feared that sime of the girls became a little tired of the repeated attempts to come to the "on grard" position.
. 111 of this changed, however, when each girl finally realized that she could actually jump into this position with sut any particular effort, and without appearing as strange as she had at first felt. Since then. Tuesclay is hailed with joe and wonder whether there will be much or little fencing. Little time as can be given to this difficult sport, good results are alreadly apparent in the added quickness and poise of the girls.

Fencing, however, is mot the ouly Work done by the seventh period class. The more difficult esthetic dancing has owerbalanced the folk-dancing Which is given to the less adranced classes. looth in the after-school and in the seventh period advanced classes, Captain Ball teams have been organiverl, and there is fair promise of a lively competition between the two classes. Is soon as the weather makes it possible, "hiking" will prob ably become one of the most pleasant of the activities.

The Girls in the Newswriting Class
The girls oi the Newswriting class are literally children of fate, for they never know from one day to another what their next task will be. Sometimes it is only a scramble for a 11 ew story, again it is a much feared, never to be forgotten, trip to "The (Chronicle" office, in an endeavor to produce in the space of a few hours a story of a few lines in length which will "get by" the editor"s desk.
Their latest trial has been that of getting the material together for the girls" edition of "The Tramarack", under the direction of $I$ Telen Kaye and Grace Scroggin, assisted by the other members of the class. Some of the girls have spent many fruitless hours, burning midnight oil, in the quest of the elusive editurial or still more unattainable feature story.

Many a girl has produced a neat replica of a much be-scribbled and bescratched manuscript only to be informed that her ambitions to reach the heights of l'arnassus have failed. and that she must try again, and, be it said to her credit, she does try again.

The majority of the girls are prominent in other activities of the school. the Vox Pucllarum being represented by Grace ©croggin, president: Thora Jackson, vice president, and Lelia Mason. Josephine lincent, and llelen Kave, members.

The star reporter of the class among the girls is "Pegry" Ross. who has so many stories in print that the other girls and most of the boys have given her first rank, in despair of coming anywhere near her.

Little Jean!

"Freshics" fromb all the North siote schools were rearesented at their first class meeting. 'They were half friglitened but wide awake little folk, and among them was a little girl not get twelve years of age.

This little girl was Jean Mc Morran. who came from the liryant School with a reputation for scholarship and prominence in schosl activities. Immediately she entered into the broad field of homors which the North Central offers. llere she won many prizes in oratory. penetry, and short-story writins.

She is not only an active member of the V'ox l'uellarum. Glee, Chemistry, French. Iatin, and daspute societies but also holds a position on "The 'lamarack" staff and is on the llonor roll.

Whtoush Jean has been "shooting 11p" lately. for 110w onte conlel hardly call her "little" Jean NeXorran, she has not spent all her energy in trying to be a "six fonter", for she is con stantly bringing prizes and honors to the North Central, the school she will soont be ealling her Jima Nater. ## Noah Didn't Know

I girl is a young unmarried wo. man," says our good friend. Mr. We ebster. Now we are not trying $t 0$ dispute this statement. but had our friend truly endeavored to give us an inkling of this absorbing subject, he woukl have exhansted his extensive vocaboulary and filled ten volumes twice the size of his present masterpiece.

It is sad that "girls are made of sugar and spice, and everything nice." That is, sometimes. Other times they are made of pickles and vinegrat and pepper.

Fach erirl is as different from each wher erirl as black is from white. ()ne girl is of an effusive, gushing nature. Inother is loud and boisterous. Snotler is ladylike in a quiet way. Another is-oh. well. what's the use of ownes inte particnlars? Space is valuable, and su is pour time. but suffice it to say that girls are fueer creatures. to say the least, and require a great deal of detailed study.

"This Band Can Play"

When the tardy buds of spring finally blossomed they witnessed the appearance of a bigger and a better hand to represent North Central. This is not an idle statement; on every hand may be found proof, both verbal and otherwise. If we first consider the otherwise, we will remember that the Chamber of Commerce found it impossible to carry on a successful patriotic celebration withont the help of the North Central Pand. The Chamber was so well pleased with the showing made at that date that the band was given the exclusive privilege of giving the datimal (iuards a good send-off, no mean honor to be sure. Though the band deeply appreciates the honors thus conferred upon it, a little statement of four words made by Mr. Harsreaves a short time ago cansed the chest of every member to swell with pride. Those four words were, "This band can play."
"Your dad is an old crank:" said the youth who had been told be her father that eleven oclock was time to go.

Dad overheard the remark. "I crank is necessary in case of the lack ni a seli-starter," he retorted.

The Vox Puellarum

The Vox l'uellarmm has been in existence since the spring of 1914, when a group of girk headed by Glady: Il illiamson met and organized. The original purpose of the club was to promote an interest in Debating, Public Speaking, and Parliamentary I aw, among the girls of dorth Central. That meeting was a Declaration of Independences, su to speak.

In the fall of the same year the object of the club was enlarged to include all kinds of literary work. On October 22, 1915, the "Freshic Frolic" for the Freshman IS girls was imitiated into North Central, and tho ". Mothers" Tea" given last sprisis is to be con tinned. The "Vox Iward" is the newest inauguration and it has been received so enthusiastically that it promises to become a permanent institution. The club offers a penmant for girls' volley ball, and is especially interested in any actility literary or otherwise, that pertains to the girls of North Central.

Many, nany years ago, there was a cirl named Katrina (spelled with a KAYE). She lived with her mother, a SIIARP old woman, and her father, a hen-pecked MISON.

Katrina became clissatisfied and decided to leave home. She wanted to go to the REDFIELD in VIRGINIA. Her mother hasl the GR. ICE to give her a IIAMMER and a STACK of cards and said: "If anything HARMS you, don't come back to me for help!"

Katrina walked and walked but got nowhere. Finally she met a STEIIART whose name was OLIXER. He admired her $\quad$ Ilfel blue eyes and BLOOMing countenance

After they harl known each other for three days, he said: "Will you MARY me?" She said: "Yes", and they lived in a MYRTI, D bower ever afterwards.

The Spring Pageant

for three years pageants have been given by the girls of North Central lligh school, and every year the pagreant has been very successful. But this year, on the evening of May fourth, in the auditorium of our high schoul. Miss Irdelia Peckham will present a pageant drama, something that will be bigger, hetter, and more successful than any given before. Is it is a pageant drama, it will be much more interesting and will cower a much heroder field of performance. There will be numerous speaking parts and choruses

The pageant is entitled "The Mid-summer-Night's Dream", and is cut from Shakespeare's play, taking in all the main characters, from Titania, the dainty fairy queen, to Puck, the saucy clown. The cast and all the dancer: have been chosen from the adranced gymasium classes. The seventy girls taking part will make their costumes themselves.

Miss Marie Kelly and C. Olin Rice are directing the speaking parts and choruses respectively. The orchestra will play all accompaniments. Nis: Peckham has also accepted the offer of help made loy the Vox Puellarum girls.

This pageant is a thing which is very seldom attempted ly the girls of any high sch(o)l, but with Miss Peckham at the heat we are assured of success.

A Fcx In the N. C. Bread Line

A fox having surfeited himseli on wiener sandwiches at twenty minutes to twelve strolled over to North Central and chanced to bump into the bread line. Ile jumped into line in front of a timid little rabbit. "lley. Fox, you get my goat." but the fox pretending mot to get a line on her chatter only leaned forward to see who was blocking the line and yelled ahead, "Say, Bonsey, old boy, get a bomb under yourself.

The line mosied along to the soup tank and the fox, mabbing three delicate crackers thought he got away with it when the ox. who was dishing out soup, bellowed, "Say, ignots, lay off the third cracker.'

Ile handed over the goods, but just then got a bead on a big. juicy hunk of pie. standing on the inside of the counter. "Soup", thought the fox. "Me for you, boy:" And fearing some one would beat him to it, he dived forward so gracefully to nab it that he forgot to balance the plate, the soup upsetting and giving a warm, slimy bath without a towel.

Moral: Don't get grabby.
-Marion Stack, "Voxer".

Vaughn Delivers the Goods

The second orchestra. under the direction of Robert Green, is capably accomplishing its two-fold (abject of giving practice in orchestra music to beginners and of producing real musicians for the first orchestra. The second orchestra now has a membership of twenty-six and the enrollment includes all the instrments necessary for the production of eroed music. The improvement of some of the members: has been phenomenal and several of the members have been prometed to the first orchestra. The most motable of these is Vaughn Boyington, the diminutive Fireshman trombone player. His promotion speaks for itself when one recalls that for two years the orchestra has been without a trombone, solely because, as Mr. Rice expresses it. "No one could deliver the goods".

The Tennis Tournament

The girls, as well as the bors of North Central, are good in athletics, especially in temis. There is assurance that the temnis tournament which will be staged ly the North Central Temis Club as soon as the courts are in good shape. will be worth while taking some interest in. Miss Srdelia Peckham. director of the girls gymuasium classes, will have charge of the tour nament. It is rumored that more than 150 girls will enter. We wish to urge the girls of the school to take special notice of the coming tennis tomrmament as we want a big turnlout.

SEEING THINGS

OME of 115 wear rose colored glasses and all our time is playtime. We play at our work and we play like mad at our play. Our friends were made expressly for our enjoviment. When they need our sympathy and our consideration we are blind to their needs. Our rose colored glasses are making us selfish, for we wear then tou constantly.

Others of us are making our way through life in company with blue glasses and how glorionsly depressed we feel! Our brightest days are tinged with blue and the dark days are blue, indeed. ()ur friends. unfor(Continued on page 40.)

BE SENSIBLE

1) you realize that North Central is one of the busiest places in the world? If not, try once to pass through the main hall during the noon hont or 8:20 a. 111 . It moon and in the morning one finds the halls almost impassible. Every student knows of the congested condition in North Central, but nothing has been done to relieve it.

Stuclents frequently arrive shortly before the opening of sehool and find it very hard to run up to their lockers, and come down to their session rooms before the tardy bell rings on account of the eongested condition. And so it would be very sensible if the students were thoughtful enough to go to their session rooms in good time during the morning hour, if they have nothing in particular to do in the hall.

Girls in Stellar Music Roles

Here are some of the sirls prominent in music-those who have taken solo parts in school musical productions. North Central's Music department. including two orchestras and a glee club, is such a veritable constellation of musical stars that it is only ly making such a distinction that any choice can be made.

Most of these girls sang their way into this picture, but Lillian Baker. Who played at the North Centrallortland debate this spring, and Eleanor Robinson, who has the distinction of being the first girl to gain a place on a North Central guartette. instrumental or otherwise. Won their places by their ability to handle the violin.

Margaret Mumm, Delia Hammer. and Irene Lindgren, are of opera fame, the former having sung the title role of "locahontas", and the other two having taken solo parts in both "Faucho Land" and "Pocahontas".

Lacille fone holds the enviable poosition of having been allotted the only. vocal part of Miss Peckham's May Festival last spring, and has a similar honor this year.
lnez Daugherty and lean Me.Morran have done most of their twinkling in convocation, and bid fair to become fixed planets.

Sou are probably wondering where 1rene Oliver and Thula LaFollette are: so did the photographer when this picture was taken. hut despite their modesty they are not groing to be orerlooked. Irene sang the lead of "Gaucho Land" and Thula has used her violin to entertain between the halves of several debates, as well as t) assist the Clarion Club with its concert.

Two Girl Pianists

North Central has many pianists in varions stages of development, but the two girls who have shown themselves to be unusualty competent are lauline Kimmel and Ellen Threns, pianists of the first and second orchestras respectively: Miss Kimmel is showing herself to be well able to take the place of Srthur Torgerson, who for four years was the mainstay of the orchestra. Miss . Threns was adjudged the best of sixteen contestants for the position of pianist of the second orchestra, and her victory places her in line for the bigger jol) when a vacancy occurs.

Pearson Wins Track Meet

Evan l'earson won the relay and incidentally the annual indoor track meet for the Junior Class, March 16. when he finished the relay race with a sensational sprint and snatehed victory from the Seniors. When the race started the Ceniors were leading by one point

The meeting was hotly contested from start to finish and Pearson furnished a fitting climas when he pulled his team inte the lead. The funiors annexed a total of 26 points and were chosely pressed by the Seniors with 22.

The sophomores mate the only clean sweep of the day when they took all three places in the 880 -yard ran and brought their total up to 13 points. The Freshmen managed to secure sevel1 points.

Martie McGowan. captain of the Senior Class, was the high point winner, taking first in the hurdle event. second in the 30 -yard dash, in addition to tying for second in the high jump and taking third in the shot put, for a total of 13 points.

Two records were smashed when McCain won the mile in 5:02 and Hanley cleared the bar at 9 feet 6 inches. Roberts tied the high jump record when he cleared the bar at 5 feet $51 / 2$ inches.

Simpkins Small But Speedy

The old adage, " "lis not quantity but ruality which makes the man," was ilhustrated in the cress country run held March 29, when Earl Simpkins, the smallest member of the stuad and ouly a Freshman, came in fully two blocks ahead of the second man, Lloyd Liscomb, who, by the way: is also a Freshman. The upper classmen lost their only chance to place when Willis Clarke, a Sophomore, finished close on the heels of Liscomb.

This was another case of the dope upset. None of the winners had been figured on becallse of their inexperience and because they had mot placed in the interclass meet.
Simpkins ran a pretty race, setting the pace throughout the entire course. which was from North Central to Corbin l'ark, around the park, and back (0) North Central. He was the least winded of the thee winners, and stands a good chance of competing in the Dual Track Neet with Lecwis and Clark.

The time was $12: 3+5 / 2$ and the distance two miles. The rumbers had to buck a stiff wind all the way out or the time might have been comsiderably better.

Freshman Track Meet

The lireshman I team captured the high homors in the freshman Indoor Track meet. which was held in the Gymnasium, March 7. by cleaning up Oin the poor Freshies to the tune of 35-10. "Never mind, Freshmen, you still have four years ahead of you and North Central expects (1) show their rivals that you are there."

Fitzsimmons and Klemz starred for the Freshman $A$ 's, but no luminary star appeared for the Freshies.
Summary:
30 Yard Daslt-Fitzsimmons, first; Hill, stound; Scluler, third. Time, :4.2.
30 Yard Ilurdle:-Fitzsinmons, first; Klemz, second; Lindahr, thircl. Time. :4.4.

Topics In Brief

The color of the rose for graduation seems to be the sticker this time instead of the thorn.

How strange it is that the girls nerer realize how nice a boy is until he is called away with the National Guards.

It's too bad that the teachers cannot hear the various remarks marle about them at exemption time.

It seems to be impossible to remove the wall flowers on the first flow before sehonl and at noon. Why not try a little fresh paint on the walls?

The east cntrance is a very important place this semester.

What a strange attraction the little red seal has for some of the teachers!

It looks as if it will soon be necessary to tic a rope around the first ten rows of scats in the auditorium when we have convocation.

Mis: Gibson (Hist. II.) : "What kind of trade did the barbarians carry on ?"

Grace Reid: "Why, they traded their skins, etc."

Helen Kaye (translating Virgil): "We praise our future ancestors to the skies."
"Mary. what city official would you go to if you found a dead body?"

Hary T.: "Crematory."
Albert Rogell's father: "W'ell, son, how are you getting along at school?" Albert: "Just fine in everything but my studies."

Dress Well 1 our Part; There Success Lies-

Looking the part has much to do with success.
He who is well attired will be well received-but he who is shabbily clothed will be denied an audience.

No sensible man belieres that style is worthless, or that conservative adlherence to style is not a prime necessity; and the men who denounce style are either fools or insincere.

There are men who are so intent upon what they call their "work" as to be apparently unconscious of style, but their attitude blocks their own progress. I little observation and inquiry on their part would prove to them that a little style would put speed into success.

We're ready to do our part by giving you advance style clothes at popular prices.

That is the usual trend of the comversation every Saturday morning in one corner of the Red Cross lleadquarters. Fior five weeks the Vox have met at the headquarters every Saturday morning and worked until one o'clock. If the North Central girls knew what fun it is to run a bandage rolling machine or sew on a lavender striped pajama jacket, the headquarters room would be erowded all the time. The girls have done a great deal toward making the hospital unit and are justly proucl of their patriotic work. It is even rumored that two of the girls went to the tumate persons, are not allowed to forget our owerwhelming troubles. The very air is electric with our dark despair. Vet how we cling to our (rlasses! We resist every attempt of Well-meaning friends to discard them. We ga\%e persistently and with virtuous heart through out blue glasses. We are lost in a maze of satisfactoon of self.

There are those of us whose glasses magnify: We sec everything big and important, because the little things become so prominent to us, we never look for the big thing but go on living in our sordid little world, and do noot know life for what life is. Therein lies the pity of it all.

Still others wear those glasses Which distort and everything is a nightmare to them. Their friends slight them, words are misconstrued, actions are misunderstood. They make stupendous mistakes and sit in an agon! of self-condemmation. 'They feel so insignificant that gradually they sink to the level of what they feel themselves to be.
linally, there are the ones who wear the glasses of Truth, taking what life offers at its face value, considering wisely, and using sancly. These are the ones who accomplish the things worth while. And with effort this mutlook can be whtained by all

The driver jumped down from his seat and seized Norton by the shoulder. "So you thought you'd hold us up, did you? Well, I guess this is one time you were mistaken."
The angry voice startled the baby. He ran into his grandfather's arms and covered his face with kisses. "Gampa plays he's big wobber like he does with baby. If naughty gun away, gamipa. Man's scared.

The driver looked down into the frightened eyes of the child. "Y'es, son," he said kindly: "Grandpa's playing the robleer, but hes" not groing to play it any more." He kissed the child, climbed up to his seat and the stage coach rolled on down the road.
The stage-driver was right. The next day Jim Norton packed his belongings and went back to civilization and a new life-for the sake of a little child.

Best Housewives of Spokane

WE cater to those who discriminate between CHEAPNESS and VAIUE. They are not carried away by cvery catchpenny advertisement that loudly proclaims cheap sales; but examine closcly into the question of quality, and are not satisfied with trash simply because it bears a cheap label. They prefer to deal with a firm whose standard of quality, service and value has been so high for years that it has hecome an institution to be relied upon. That standard will not be lowered in the years to come. The success that has been attained is proof conclusive that the policy is right.

Some of North Central's"Wallfowers"
Once upon a time, when girls were very much like 1 )resten china dolls. many of them, through mo fault of their own, were lesignated as wallflowers. Wallflowers-does everyone understand the significance of the name? Flowers, because they were pretty: adjective "wall" prefixed to indicate a lack of attractiveness where men people werc concomed. Result.
wallflowers, as heretofore stated. In this day: however, the tables are turned. Let those who are skeptical take North Central for example.
If one should take a walk down the lower hall in the morning or at the noon hour, he would see many smiling individuals backed scentely against the walls, others vainly pushing for a place, and a select few high and (Continued on page 63.)

This Saxon 'Six" sets a  new pace in performance

Repeatedly has Saxon "Six" proved itself the superior car. Not alone in private use but in pulblic competition, too.

A case in point is the motor demonstration at the San l)iego Fair when Saxon "Six" won over both eights and twelves, as well as other "sixes," in speed, in hill-climbing and in suick get-away.

But this new series Saxon "Six" is even an abler-acting car.
li, continued and consistent experimentation and research work Saxom
"Six" motor has been given a smoother. more supple power-flow.
Think of what this refinement means in quicker acceleration. in increased flexibility, in improsed high-gear work.
Think what it means compled with the casy-riding qualities of Saxon "Six" and its notable comomy in gasoline, in oil, and in repair service.
Figures based upon all Saxon "Sixes" in use to date show the average cost for repair parts is $$ 8.50$ per car.
Do you know any car that can rivalmuch less equal-that record?

Is not this. as a daily occurrence. conclusive evidence? lnseed. there are even attempts made at wall decorating during convoca-tions-attempts which might be suecessful, no doubt, were it not for Dr. liencfiel's ". Ill find seats, please. Plenty of room in the rear".

Moreover, North Central's wallowers are not confined to one species. There are tall, athletic, golden-haired sunflowers, pert Johnny-jump-ups, wistful brown-eyed Susaus, and shy, retiring Bachelors Buttons. Orcasionally one finds a dark, ruddy peony, or a rare cantus, and even, at times, a Jack-in-the-pulpit. And doubtless. these many varieties, from the simplest little flower to the most grgeous one, have their place to fill in the life of North Central. Who is there so base that he does not realize the real worth and effectiveness of a "wallflower"? Fismer Cu*thaugh, "I over".
